At the close of the market today both the rail and industrial averages had established new high records. The rapidity of recent advance is believed in some quarters, however, to have weakened the technical position of the market, leaving it vulnerable to an unexpected news development such as the Coolidge announcement.

Experienced Wall Street observers, however, are of the opinion that the reeent advance has been founded on buying by powerful financial interests and large market operators rather than on any extensive speculation by small

Coolidge's Hand Trembles.

The suspense and importance of the anouncement showed on Mr. Coolidge himself. Those who have known him for a long time never have noticed the least display of nervousness. Today as he handed the newspaper men the little slips of paper his hand trembled. Just what prompted him to take this action and at the time he did is a matter of conjecture. Most certainly, observers agree, it was nothing that he has found in the West, as virtually every written or spoken word on the subject for the last month or so has been to the effect that he would be reasked the correspondents to come back at noon, or 2 o'clock in Washington, and 3 o'clock or closing time for the markets of Wall street. They had never thus been assembled before by Mr. Coolidge, and it is not recalled that any other President has so summoned them since the present method of contact between the President and the press was established.

In the Middle West there is only one State that seems to have challenged him, and that is Iowa, where the Lowden boom apparently has a hold. Perhaps one or two other States have not been so enthusiastic, North Dakota, for instance, but even they have been represented as being reconciled to the inevitable—that he would be renominated and reelected—and not prepared or intending to fight him. press was established.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, who only yesterday told newspaper men that the West was willing to give Mr. Coolidge another chance but that there would be trouble if he again vetoed farm relief legislation, was present. He had visited with the President at the lodge over night and talked farm relief, the country's greatest economic question.

But it is doubtful if the senator had any inkling of what was to come about. He merely stepped into the President's office with Col. Blanton Winship, the President's military aid, and Maj. James F. Coupal, his personal physician. He wanted to see what a press conference was like.

or intending to fight him. Bountful crops are harvesting or in the offing, the sun is shining bright over the West, where a bright sun means so much, and sores of the Mc-Nary-Haugen bill veto seem to be difficult of reopening.

Of course, Senator Capper had a thought on this, in that it would be mighty bad for the President to be put in the light of defeating farm legislation at the next session, right on the eve of the elections, too. And although It developed that it was unlike any that ever has taken place before. The newspaper men stood ready with their note paper waiting for the Fresident to speak. Instead, he simply handed them the small slips of paper about 4 inches long and 1½ inches wide, and replied in the negative when asked if he had anything else to say. Immediately there was a pell-mell scattering to telegraph and telephone wires, 5 blocks away, and over a gumbo mud road from which two of the racing cars skidded onto the sidewalk.

Some observers here sought to hazard Some observer, here sought to hazard the suggestion that the Geneva conference may have had something to do with it. Those of this trend of thought, and they were simply hazarding, reasoned that the President now foresees his inability to give the country the tax reduction which he had hoped for. This does not refer to the $300,000,000 reduction expected at the next session, but a greater one, which About 200 tourists, automobile ones for the most part, and dressed in camping regalia, were waiting outside the school for a glimpse of the President. next session, but a greater one, which, it is believed, he wanted to leave as an administration heritage.
But this seems a wild guess.
It is pointed out, too, that, of course, there remains the possibility of Mr.
Coolidge being drafted. He does not say in his formal statement that he will not run again, but, it is explained, he says "I do not 'choose' to run."
Yet, the political prognosticators point out that no man has ever been drafted yet, although the historians say the people were in a mood to draft George Washington. Roosevelt, who had a popular hold, was not drafted.

Mad Scramble Expected.

Certainly, the political experts assert, the effect of his announcement will be to stop 'the jumping on the band wagon, and that was believed to have been the President's greatest chance for an acclamation nomination. None of the feading lights in the party, these experts say, were ever willing to standidly by and give Mr. Coolidge the nomination out of the goodness of their hearts. It did seem that he was in a fair way to gain enough delegates to go into the convention and "outwardly" get the nomination by acclamation. This is the only way he could have taken it, in the opinion of politiclans, because if he ever put himself in the light of seeking the office again or fighting for it, there might be a revulsion of popular feeling.

The Commerce Secretary was out here only a few weeks ago. In the past every time there has been a suggestion of a possible legatee of Mr. Coolidge's strength it has been Mr. Hoover, and those who talked with him when he was here obtained the impression that he was an active candidate this time, not that he has not been a candidate ever since he came back from Europe and did not know whether he was a Republican or Democrat, but that he had high hopes for 1928. Whether anything passed between him and Mr. Coolidge to give him these high hopes is, of course, not known.

It is a fact that the President and he were in disagreement on two outstanding phases of flood relief, but Mr. Hoover forebore any misgivings he may have had and in his talk with newspaper men seemed to express his chieftain's thought, rather than his own.

How Editors View Coolidge's Statement

startled the country today by giving out this statement: "I do not choose to run for President in 1928." On its face it is enigmatic and subject to various interpretations and highly stimulative of political speculation. There is no reference in it to a third term, to a second elective term or to the tradition which has been recently invoked by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and others as limiting presidential service, successive or nonsuccessive. It seems to be more an expression of personal feeling with regard to a situation in which the President could hardly escape the appearance of being actively a candidate to succeed himself.

Times: The friends of Speaker Longworth, of Gov. of his mind to let them have their fling for a while and finally take away from them the fruits of victory? It is only fair to the President to suppose that he means to be fair to his fellow Republicans.

World: Not more than half a dozen Presidents in our whole history have had the opportunity to make a choice which Mr. Coolidge has made. In spite of the chorus of those who have insisted that no great principle was at stake in the matter of a third term, a very great principle was at stake.

Mr. Coolidge by his voluntary regular principle was at stake.

Mr. Coolidge by his voluntary regular principle which his less thoughful supporters were quite ready to abandon. There will be some of them, no doubt, who even now will read the President's sentence as meaning that they are at liberty to organize a campaign to "draft" him. But for ourselves, we believe that the President has spoken without mental reservation of any kind and that he has done a great service in the preservation of the essential spirit of the American constitutional system.

Capital: His statement does not mean that he can not be renominated at the national convention next year and that is what may happen anyway. State Journal: President Coolidge's statement may mean very little so far as changing national political conditions should it finally develop that President Coolidge will accept a renomination, but will not be an active candidate. There is perhaps little doubt but that the Kansas delegation lican leadership professed the utmost surprise when they learned of Mr. Coolidge's action which struck out of a clear sky. A number of cabinet officers are out of town, and those here had taken the afternoon off to go to the baseball park to do honor to Walter Johnson on the twentieth anniversary of his entry into major league bas

Some politicians who have been predicting that Mr. Coolidge would not run again, however, have been linking the name of Secretary Hoover with gostip of a possible candidate sympathetic with the policies of the Coolidge administration.

In aligning the group of Republican possibilities, this gossip has pointed to Mr. Hoover's support of the President on the disputed McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which is a hot fighting issue, especially in the Middle West. Mr. Lowden and Vice President Dawes have indorsed features of that measure. Speaker Longworth is credited with being in opposition to it, although as Speaker he was not forced to take an active part in the bitter fight over it in Congress.

The effect of the President's statement on Democratic campaign plans was a matter of contextive Section 1.

The effect of the President's statement on Democratic campaign plans was a matter of conjecture. Some Democratic leaders had expressed a willingness to go into the campaign with a third-term issue, notwithstanding the insistence of Republicans that the third-term issue would not hold in Mr. Conjecture. Mr. Coolidge's case.
On the other hand, there have been

Regardless of what led Mr. Coolidge professed to know most about the houghts that have been passing through his mind as the campaign nears, agreed that he fulfilled well his through his mind as the campaign nears, agreed that he fulfilled well his traditional silence by giving no advance notice of yesterday's development.

Political followers of the administration time and time again have journeyed to the White House in an effort to draw out the President on the subject of another term, only to come away empty-handed. Many had come to the conclusion that no public expression from him was to be expected prior to the 1928 convention and that he would allow developments to control the situation.

Mr. Coolidge's close friends have insisted that he run again, and have told him repeatedly that the nomination would be obtained for him. Some of these friends last night were those who were convinced that he was far from eliminated by his statement.

Attorney General Sargent, who has known the President perhaps longer than any other high official in the administration had this to say:

"I have no comment."

A symposium of official administration utterances would not be very dissimilar to his brief utterance. It was indicated that neither Mr. Sargent nor Secretary Kellogs had any advance information that a statement of any kind was forthcoming from the Black Hills.

But, while many high officials were unwilling to commit themselves in the afternoon, last night there was much gossiping in the inner circles over the new turn which had been given to the American political machine and to the developments that it might bring about within the next few months—developments which none here care to forecast publicly.

There as the scattered residents of the town dropped in for their mail or supplies they heard of the latest development in the career of Plymouth's most famous son.

It had been taken for granted here We think it a fair assumption that this is the principal reason which has moved him. Calvin Coolidge does not wish to be the man to seek deliberately to override the precedent which, in the United States, has prevented any manfrom occupying the Presidency Indefinitely. Only one or two not pressed for time loitered, wondering if that was really all there was to be to it.

Mr. Coolidge turned back to his desk, lowering his gaze toward some papers, fingered with these a moment and then called for his overcoat and hat. A broad smile on his face, he joined Senator Capper, and the two walked out to the White House limousine for the trip to the summer White House.

State Amendments

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Texas voters apparently are satisfied with the present State constitution, for they overwhelmingly voted yesterday against four proposed amendments to it.

The four changes proposed to permit revision of the State's higher court system in a way many lawyers claimed would permit speedier disposition of cases; would have changed the system of taxing; would have permitted the legislature to abolish payment of fees to certain county officers and substitute straight salaries, and would have raised the salary of the Governor from $4,000 to 10,000 a year, and the pay of legislators from $5 a day when in session to $1,500 a year. The vote was light in the greater part of the State.

Again Further Reduces Cost

Buyers Can Pay for Cars Out of Income at Lowest Available Charge for Interest, Handling and Insurance

In line with Hudson's long established policy of giving greatest value for the money and making delivery at lowest charge for handling, freight, etc., is this new advantage now made possible by the H.M.C. Purchase Plan.

The buyer who pays for his Hudson or Essex out of income is accommodated at the lowest available charge for interest, handling and insurance.

Hudson and Essex popularity was never so great. Sales were never so large. In every locality they are the most popular cars.

Performance, reliability and fine appearance can be bought at low prices, because savings due to mammoth production and superior facilities, are passed on to the buyer in increased quality and low list prices. Distribution economies likewise effect savings in charges that accrue in delivery of cars from factory to distributor and dealer which are also passed on to the buyer. And now the H.M.C. Purchase Plan brings further savings to time purchasers.

Hudson and Essex in final cost are way below any car with which their quality, fineness and performance can be compared.

Each of these four distinctive steps contributing to Hudson-Essex values-engineering and manufacturing skill, low list prices, efficient distribution and now low financing charge, emphasize cost advantages that none can deny.

The final cost of a car is what you must consider. List prices do not always indicate values. Check every item of performance, quality and cost. Hudson and Essex are just as attractive in the final cost as the factory list price indicates.

And if you take advantage of the purchase plan remember that here, too, you are accorded the very lowest available terms.

Crown, Says Heir to Throne, the Mark of Unity in Divergent Empire.

PREMIER EMPHASIZES IMPERIAL COOPERATION

Wales Accepts Membership as Privy Councilor in Canadian Capital.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Official Canada tonight heard her sovereignty and independence, as a member of the British commonwealth, freely discussed not only, by the prime minister of the mother country, but by the heir to the British throne.

Canada's status of equality had been defined before, but tonight the statements seemed to hold a new significance, inasmuch as they were delivered in the parliament buildings of the Dominion's capital. The occasion was a dinner in honor of Canada's distinguished visitors, the Prince of Wales. Prince George and Premier Stanley Baldwin.

The Prince of Wales said the Confederation of Canada, if not the first, was the clearest step taken up to that time on the road which has now led to the conception and attainment of autonomous communities within the empire. The prince described these communities as equal in status and marked by common allegiance to the crown.

Politics Institute Is Told by Dr. Beard That It Would Refresh Politics.

There was a moment of deep emotion shown among the hearers of England's young "Ambassador of Good Will" as he said:

"To me in particular, as the king's oldest son, the conception has a special importance, which, in whatever part of the empire I may be, I try always to keep in mind. The crown stands above all distinctions of country, race and party, and serves to mark the unity in which all such differences are transcendent.

"If some day it should fall to my lot to assume that high responsibility, I trust I may be found worthy of it."

The Prince emphasized the desirability of personal contact of the empire, and frequent conferences among leaders in the various walks of life. Canadians he met in London, he declared, kept "him abreast with development in this great country which is so bewilderingly swift." He added that at least he had lost no opportunity of keeping fresh those contacts which he had made in the past ten years with all parts of the British Empire.

OFFERED BY SPEAKER

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 2 (A.P.)—An agricultural and political siliance between the South and West as a solution of the farmers' difficulties was advocated before the Institute of Politics today by Dr. Charles A. Beard, economist.

"Personally," said Dr. Beard, addressing a round-table discussion on agriculture, "I hope the new confederation may be effected. It would be good for the country and give politics a refreshment of the British Empire.

Premier Baldwin Speaks.

Mr. Baldwin dealt with the work of the imperial conference in London last year. He said that what it did was to define in a phrase the living relationship of all parts of the British Empire to one another, and to begin to work out the practical applications of that relationship. The formula, he said, is founded on the equality of status of all the self-governing parts of the empire, and the unity of the whole empire under the British crown.

"I have heard it said," continued the Prime Minister, "and said on very high authority, that Canada needed no such charter of nationhood, because she possessed it already."

He said that he would not venture opinion on such point, which is one on which Canada alone can pronounce, but other countries within the empire found help in the statement of their position.

"We are a practical people," he said, "and, granted that our status is clear, what we all want to know is how best the solored races."

He said the view of the conference was that "no part of the empire should henceforth act in external matters which are fikely to affect the common weal. without counting first what effects its own actions may have on the other parts of the empire and without giving these parts a chance of expressing their views."

The major responsibility in matters of foreign affairs and defence, continued Mr. Baldwin, still rests on the government of Great Britain.

"Canada's share of responsibility is growing," he proceeded, "but this diversity of function in administrative matters is largely a question of convenience and can be altered quickly or slowly, according to changing circircumstances."

The Prince of Wales, his brother, Prince Georse, and Premier Baldwin of Great Britain, today were received officially by the Canadian capital.

Something of a surprise came after Premier King's address of welcome to the visitors when the premier announced that the Prince of Wales had accepted membership in the privy council of the Dominion.

The prince was presented with the minutes of the last meeting appointing by Gov. Gen. Wellington.

Stanley Baldwin, the British premier, it was announced, had also a accepted membership in the privy countil of the Dominion. Obligation Upon All.

MR. COOLIDGE'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

By the single sentence, "I do not choose to run for President in 1928," President Coolidge has entirely changed the political situation. The history of the United States is affected by these ten words.

Oversubtle brains are busy reading into this announcement a political stratagem. They think they detect an attempt on Mr. Coolidge's part to convey a message something like this: "I do not choose to run for President in 1928; but if the Republican party should insist upon nominating me without my lifting a finger, I would of course be bound to accept the nomination." Thus, say these wiseacres, Mr. Coolidge and his advisers anticipate the third-term objection and seek to remove it by making it appear that his nomination will be forced upon him. He would thereby ward off the accusation of using the influence of his office in his own behalf.

But the American people do not look upon Mr. Coolidge as a political trickster who uses weasel words. They know that he weighs his words. When he announces that he does not choose to run, they know that he will not run. He has eliminated himself from next year's campaign.

The time and manner of Mr. Coolidge's announcement remove all doubt as to its sincerity. He makes the announcement on the anniversary of the death of President Harding, marking the completion of Mr. Coolidge's fourth year in the White House. He writes the announcement and hands a copy of it to each correspondent, without a word of comment.

Although many persons familiar with Mr. Coolidge's bent of mind had surmised that he might startle the country by refusing to become a candidate in 1928, they presumed that he would withhold the announcement until next spring, after Congress had completed its work. It is commonly supposed that a President who is not to become a candidate for reelection lacks influence over the last Congress with which he deals. But this depends upon the President and the Congress. Mr. Coolidge will have occasion to deal with two more sessions, at least. He is on good terms with Congress, and fluence in matters of national policy or administration will be impaired by his announcement.

Mr. Coolidge is a reverent reader of American history. He may have as decided objections to a third-term President as any other American citizen. His place on the roll of Presidents is high, and his fame is secure. What more could an American achieve? Surely Mr. Coolidge will not lose prestige in Congress or among the people by following the precedent set by George Washington. Candidates in his own party will seek his friendly aid, and Democrats generally will applaud him for adhering to the national tradition. His advice to Congress will be accepted as that of a patriot who can not have any personal interest to

The way is now open for deserving Republicans to aspire to the Presidency for the term beginning March 4, 1929. No one of them could have expected to be nominated if Mr. Coolidge had kept silence. Now any one of them can challenge all the others. The list of eligibles is ample, and several names come to the mind without effort. Vice President Dawes, Frank O. Lowden, Nicholas Longworth, Andrew W. Mellon, Charles E. Hughes and Herbert Hoover will be suggested. Other notable Republican names will occur to every reader. "The arrows of rumor flew in every direction, and every bystander could gather a quiver-

The Democratic party instantly pricks up its ears-no invidious allusion intendat the news from Rapid City. With Coolidge out of the way, what dreams may come of clover fields stretching out to 1933? The strongest figure in the Re-publican party is suddenly eliminated. Is it not reasonable to hope that intestine the Republican party will result in the nomination of a candidate who can be easily beaten? But on the other hand, the increased visibility of the goal may intensify the struggle for the Democratic nomination, and develop another Madison Square bear garden. If good policy ever called upon Democrats to compose their differences before convention time, it does so now. Let them take a leaf from the Republican book of strategy and learn the secret of teamwork.

Some Republicans are already saying, Well, if the convention decides to nominate Coolidge he will have to accept, in spite of his announcement." But this is the voice of the politician speaking. It is not the voice of the successor to George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Coolidge knew that in all probability he would be nominated if he remained silent. He could not say so, but he could say that he would not run for President in 1928, and by so saying decline the nomination in advance. He has done so.

WALTER JOHNSON.

Walter Johnson, with twenty years of service to his credit, would be but in his prime anywhere except in baseball. There he is the "Old Master," the veteran of them all, to whom Washington and the baseball world paid tribute yesterday. He went to the pitcher's box upon his anniversary, the only one of all the players present whose record of active service covered a similar period. Most of those who participated in the contest had not played with their first juvenile team on that August day in 1907 when Walter Johnson entered the major league.

The veteran was, in fact, an inspiration to all of those who are now his colleagues, as well as the thousands of others. It did not take Walter Johnson long to establish himself as a pitcher. It took an equally short while for his character to assert itself. Only clean and careful living made it possible for him to last through a score of years in a pastime that makes heavy physical demands upon its participants. This was the lesson that he taught through his own career. Other men with the same latent talents came in and out of baseball during the years, but only Walter Johnson remained.

He is, as he himself acknowledges, no longer the pitching sensation that he was when he was transplanted from the wilds of Idaho to the crest of big league fame over night. The speed with which he once puzzled opposing batters is no longer present in his arms, nor will his legs support the strain of constant effort. There is no regular turn in the box for "Barney" now, but at less frequent intervals than in the days of his glory he is still a marvelous pitcher. He will rank in the record books and the unwritten history of the game, which may be read only in the hearts of man, as the greatest pitcher and finest character that the sport has ever known. Feeble words can add nothing to this accomplishment.

EXTRA SESSION POLITICS.

The cleavage regarding an early call of Congress becomes more sharply one of party as the summer progresses. No prominent Republican other than Senator Smoot, of Utah, has thus far seen the pressing need for a meet ing of Congress prior to the statutory date. The number of Democrats making such a demand has, following a temporary lull, in creased. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, and Senator Edwards, of New Jersey, have most recently joined those who would set the legislative machinery in operation at the earliest possible moment.

Almost without exception, the President and his advisers are accused of playing politics in their refusal to see the necessity of an immediate session of Congress. By means of loose generalities the Republican party's ambitions are linked with the President's belief that Congress can, if it wishes, transact the necessary business in the allotted time.

The flaw in the Democratic position is that each and every critic cites in support of the demand for an extra session reasons far more political than any which may be attached to those of the contrary opinion. Senator Robinson insists that Congress should meet in order to pass a tentative bill he has drawn to provide flood relief and control. The minority leader's contention is that the Federal Government should accept full responsibility for flood damage and endow the Mississippi River Commission with $100,000,000 annually to carry out the problem of control. This is an expedient that may or may not work, but there can be no doubting its efficacy as a drain upon the Treasury. It takes into account nothing but the expenditure of large sums of money, with no consideration for the way in which it shall be spent, nor the plan under which it is to be disbursed. It too nearly resembles the manner in which the Mississippi River problem has been approached heretofore, and which has been found wanting.

Senator Edwards, who is even more bitter in his denunciation of the game of politics that the Republicans are playing, wants an early session of Congress to provide tax reduction None of the estimates so far made suits the New Jersey senator. He believes that the taxpayers should be given the benefit of the entire surplus amassed ir the last year, $600,000,000 in round figures. The fact that no such excess of revenue over expenditures is in prospect does not worry Senator Edwards in the least He insists that his motives are not political. They appear, at least, to be philanthropic, but since the taxpayer who receives it the coming year would have to turn back the money at a later date, the wisdom of Sentor Edwards' proposal is not apparent.

EXPERTS TESTIFY. . .

Mr. William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives, has come to the defense of present-day statesmen against the charge that they are intellectually, and by training, inferior to those who made up the congressional rolls in the good old days.

Taking them by and large, Mr. Page, who has been connected with legislative matters for many years, concludes that the average member of the present day and generation is fully as capable as was the average member of 30 or 40 years ago. There is no one competent through personal contact to dispute the findings of the accomplished clerk of the House. He is an expert on congressmen, and probably | 000. "His not to reason why."

is quite right in his findings. Congressmen are congressmen, with as many virtues and as many foibles as those who served in the days of Blaine, Reed, Carlisle, Crisp or Henderson.

However, when it comes to comparing the robbers of today with those of a generation ago, the comparison is certainly odious for the modern type, if the Rev. Alexander Adair, of Denver, is to be regarded as an authority. And there should be no question on that score, for the present "reverend" was the junior member of those gentlemanly outlaws who were known as the Jesse James gang. According to Mr. Adair, James and his followers were a modern reproduction of Robin Hood and his Merry Men. The robbers of today differ altogether in their methods and their breeding from those with whom Mr. Adair was professionally associated. To a press correspondent the reverend gentleman, "whose stature is slight and whose hair is graying," said: "There's no bravery in the bandits of today. One is afraid of the other. A lot of the robbery of the old days was done for the adventure and to keep up a reputation. Now banditry is commercialized. Our leader was with us. Today the chief may be sitting in an office and have a stenographer."

Mr. Adair ceased to be a bandit in 1874. He is said to be a very good minister today, and he certainly has the "right dope" when he advises the youth: "Go wrong and you'll get caught. There's a Judas and a cell for every

ANOTHER PACIFIC CABLE.

Relations between the United States and the Orient have often been strained because of the lack of communications. A crowded cable and high rates have prevented full and free interchange of sentiment. The jingoes, with their fiery utterances, have more often had the right of way than sober and settled opinion of the people who counted. The State Department under several recent administrations has realized the difficulty, and has sought to bring about a better and more convenient exchange

The solution appears to be at hand. The Western Union has made public its intention to lay a cable between the United States and the Orient, which will make possible twelve times the business that can be carried on the existing line. Two routes are under consideration. The northern route would save approximately 3,000 miles of cable and c.st $6,000,000 less to construct. It would start at Seattle, go north to the Aleutian Islands and then to the northern tip of Japan. The southern route would follow the line of the present cable and connect up with the Oriental systems at Yokohama. Whichever path across the Pacific is chosen it is the intention of the company to connect Japan with Shanghai and the Chinese terminal with Manila.

The new cable will have an important bearing both on the business and diplomatic relations between the United States and the countries across the Pacific. This Government has been hampered more than once by its inability to get rapid and direct dispatches from the Far East. During the Chinese trouble there have been three wires available from Shanghai to London, but only one over which the representatives of this Government might transmit reports direct to Washington. Pressure upon the present cable facilities has often been so great that extreme delay in transmission resulted. All of these factors served to retard the progress and influence of Americans in that part of the world. The new cable ought not only to be a source of profit to its builders, but of direct service to the Government and people of the United States.

AIRPLANE-STEAMER COOPERATION.

Clarence Chamberlin demonstrated another valuable use for the airplane Monday, when he rose from the deck of the Leviathan, 82 miles distant from New York, and delivered a sackful of mail at Teterboro, N. J., 2 hours and 37 minutes later. He could have carried passengers just as well.

Both steamship and airplane services are made more valuable by this cooperation. Pending the time when airplanes will cross the ocean regularly, they can bridge across relatively short distances at either end of a steamship's voyage, thus expediting the delivery of mail and passengers. A business man can remain aboard a departing vessel until it is 100 miles or so from land and then return to his office within two hours, or he can take an airplane upon approaching England or France and hurry forward, saving nearly a day.

Soon, probably, the landing of airplanes upon the deck of a steamship will be made feasible. Then late mails can be sent by plane, which can overtake a vessel and deposit the mails, which can be whisked off at the end of the voyage and carried to destination by airplane. Thus, without waiting for the time for airplanes to make the complete journey a drastic reduction of time can be made in the transoceanic carriage of mails.

THE WATCHDOG.

Comptroller General McCarl is an economist of high order. He is a rigid constructionist of the law. That's why he holds his job, to which he is glued by act of Congress for nine or ten years more. It does not make any difference to the Comptroller General whether an expenditure saves the Government either money or time. If it is not in strict accordance with the statutes, he gives that expenditure the "K. O." instead of the "O. K."

This was demonstrated a year or more ago when the Comptroller General ruled that as Congress had authorized the expenditure of $15,000 for a memorial, the War Department must give the contract to the bidder whose bid was closest to $15,000, instead of to the bidder who offered an equally satisfactory job for several thousand less.

Now this sleepless watchdog of the statutes has saved the United States Treasury another two-dollar bill in declining to approve the payment of air mail postage on certain legal papers. The Federal court in California had urged the utmost expedition in sending on the papers, and for complying with that request the district attorney in Boston, or the assistant who actually mailed the package, must reimburse the contingent fund of his office by restoring $2 in lawful money to that fund. He will probably send future communications under the frank of Senator Heflin, if he is wise.

It matters not to Mr. McCarl that the Gov ernment won its suit, which involved $1,000,

HEARING ON PROPOSED STREET CHANGES IS SET

Five Alterations in Highway Plan Would Affect Many Thoroughfares.

MEETING ON AUGUST 17

A public hearing on five propos changes in the highway plan has been set for August 17 in the District Bullding. Some of the changes are extensive and affect many streets, it was announced yesterday. They are as follows:

lows:

Elimination of Volta place between Forty-second and Forty-fourth streets northwest. Melvin C. Hazen, District surveyor, reported that there was no probability of this street ever being extended east of Forty-second street because to do so it would have to be cut through the grounds of Georgetown University and that the grade in the two blocks named makes use of the strips as a highway impracticable.

A slight change in the alignment of Twenty-seventh street northwest be-Twenty-seventh street northwest be-ween Broad Branch road and Jenifer street, so that the existing Swart road will be in the center of the street when widesed.

will be in the center of the street when widened.

Elimination of some and relocation of other streets in the extreme south end of the District, due to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission having acquired a considerable part of parcel No. 248-8.

A change in the highway plan north of Kalmia street and ceast of Sixteenth street northwest, to better fit topography where it is proposed to start a new real estate subdivision.

Changes in all property in the Northwest section south of Massachusetts avenue and west of Nebraska avenue.

HOW TO MAKE A PARTY OUT OF NOTHING

DEAR MISS SINGLETON:—How can I give a unique entertainment to celebrate my eighteenth birthday? I want to ask three girl friends and four boy friends, and I haven't any place to give a dinner party, and I don't know how to do it really. I live in a village and the really. I live in a village and the house has only two rooms on the ground floor, a living room and a kitchen. I won't have a party in the kitchen and Mother won't let me have it in the living room. What shall I do?

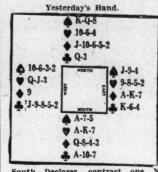

Wishes are horses oftener than B. M. thinks. She can put a 1° of good will into her party and it will be a success. First, if the living nor is taboo and she won't have the kitchen (quite right, too, for it will probably be hot), what is the matter with the back plazza? I am sure there is one.

I'd have a 'urge bouquet of field flowers in the middle. I'd have a cold vienu. Cold soup, cold fish with letting, or co's stuffed eggs, cold meat and Russian salad, peach ice cream. ### Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

The pointer for today is: AT NO TRUMP, WITH QUEEN AND ONE SMALL IN DUMMY, AND ACE-TEN AND ONE SMALL IN CLOSED HAND, PLAY SMALL FROM DUMMY.

South Declarer, contract one No Trump; what four cards should be played to the first trick?

My answer slip reads as follows:
To the first trick West should lead the Five of Clubs; North (Dummy) should play the Trey of Clubs; East should play the Trey of Clubs; South (Closed Hand) should play the Seven of Clubs.

West opens with the fourth best of his long suit. Dummy, holding Queen and one small, would play the Queen if South held Ace and one small one small one small to but as South has A-10 and one small, two tricks in the suit are assured by playing small from Q-X, where only one trick might be made if the Queen were played.

South does not win the trick, although the Queen would be good in Dummy on the second trick. By ducking, he can hold up the Ace until the third round; and then, if the adverse Club division be 5-3 (as is probable) and East win the second Diamond trick and East win the second Diamond trick taken by his side, he will not have a Club to lead. Note the difference in the result if South win the first trick.

When Janet was born,
She was tiny and frail,
And the doctor that morn,
Rather troubled and pale,
Told her mother and me,
As he bent to appraise her:
"She's as cute as can be
But I don't think you'll raise her.'

When Janet was one
She was tiny, but still
She'd already begun
Demonstrating her will
And her mother once said,
Or several times maybe,
As she put her to bed:
"She's too wise for a baby!"

on the lawn of the hotel. "About three miles," replies the Goofer. "Expecting anything?" "A package," admits Mitzl. Shall they go? Yes. First she has to change her dress, the dress with the cuffs and collar made in eyelet embroidery, for some unknown reason.

The car was broken. That's why the Goofer had gallantly to make good his offer on foot. Polly was sorry for him and said she'd go, too. Just a nice walk and she only had to slip into this linen coat printed in modernistic design. It's all right, But, of course, Polly isn't Mitzl. There's more than three miles difference between them.

The six miles were not made for nothing. No, indeed. The box contained a linen bag to match Mitzi's hat and coat. Whereupon the Goofer gets a smile. And wouldn't he like tea beneath the trees on the lawn? She's so thoughtful thinks the Goofer! Unconscious of the fact that her new hat and gown inspired the suggestion rather than his own travel-worn state.

Mine Squadron Crews

Admiral Lord Jellicoe told the last plenary session of the conference that Great Britain must have at least 70 cruisers to protect her trade routes and food lines. Including the fourteen 10,-1000-ton cruisers with a total tonnage of 383,000. A British "program" calls for nine of their projected programs. If it does mean this, it is said that presumably it contains matter of considerable interest to Americans.

Under this interpretation the "built and building" would then constitute the total tonnage limitation for Great Britain and Japan up to 1931, and the next three years. If Great Britain is the case of Great Britain is the case of Great Britain in Litical Maximum of 400,000 tons. Bucharest, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—King Michael I, Roumania's deep-dimpled, golden-haired, blue-eyed sovereign, renounced his toys and his pet dog today to sit on the throne in the Royal Palace at Bucharest, where the regency formally established itself.

The main idea is based on the plan which W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the British admiralty, advanced some idea was ago when he said a temporary and days ago when he said a temporary and dimited agreement would be better than nothing. His idea was to limit the number of 10,000-ton cruisers and reach agreement as they comply take place only when he is 18, but merely went through the form of sitting upon the throne while the regency disposed of a number of state matters.

which take place only while the regency disposed of a number of state matters.

Finds Spene Interesting.

Five-year-old Michael was much interested in the lavish surroundings in the throne room, his attention being called especially by the beautiful polished hardwood floor, which he remarked, in a rather unkingly way, would make a fine place for him to use his American rubber-tired scooter, which is the chief joy of his life.

Now that he is ruler over 16,000,000 people, the protocol that made him such haunts his boyhood nature at every step. He is constantly reminded by his tutors that he can no longer act as other boys, but must keep, ever in mind that he is a king. But such admonitions have no effect on his vibrant rather headstrong nature. He still loves to play with fire, as all children do, says his grandmother, and is up to all sortes of other pranks.

But probably his worst trait, the queen says, is that he loves to tease dogs and cats. He was bitten several times by dogs, notably last summer when the psalace doctors gave him so much Pasteur treatment that he was lit for a fortnight. Even this, says his grandmother, hasn't cured him of his love of teasing them.

A State Department official has noted A State Department official has noted certain misapprehensions in the press as to the exact comparison between the latest British proposals and the American proposals on tonnage. In the first place, the official pointed out, the figure of 400,000 tons for cruisers was not and has never been an American proposal. It was stated that any discussion beyond this figure would be useless and no formal proposition of any kind involving 400,000 tons, has ever been put forward by this Government. The original American proposals were for 250,000 to 300,000 tons of cruisers; 200,000 to 250,000 tons of destroyers, and from 60,000 to 90,000 tons of suband from 60,000 to 90,000 tons of sub-marines. This would mean in combi-nation from 510,000 to 640,000 tons ### nation from 510,000 to 640,000 tons. Furthermore, the American proposition has been conditioned from the beginning on a limitation of categories, and the maintenance of the proportions indicated by these figures in the several classes is an essential feature of our Proposals Call for 737,500 Tons.

The present British proposals call for The present British proposals call for 737,500 tons of the combine classes with the age limit of cruise reduced from twenty years under the original American proposal to eighteen years for large cruisers and sixteen years for small cruisers. This figure would be arrived at by the addition of 590,000 tons under these limits and the retention of 147,500 tons of any types of vessels over these age limits.

As the British have indicated their desires for 90,000 tons of submarines and 221,000 tons of destroyers, this would mean that their lowest cruiser limit would be 426,000 tons and with the flexible provision that tonnages not availed of in one type might be considerably increased.

used in another, this figure might be considerably increased. An analysis of these figures reveals the fact that the British combination proposal is about 100,000 tons over any proposal that this Government has made and, furthermore, on account of the British proposal that total tonnage allocated may be used as each power thinks best, would allow for the possibility of cruiser tonnage even in excess of 426,000 tons, which is 126,000 tons over the proposal of the United States and 26,000 tons above the absolute limit of discussion.

hey deemed that the broaders have deemed that the security of cosignatories menaced the security of the complaining power.

Another clause stipulates that the signatories shall exchange complete information about cruiser construction intention. Still another clause makes it clear that the United States is not to exceed the total British cruiser reaching strength by 1931. In other words, America gets parity with Great British, in the Japan that.

8,000-Ton Class Asked.

With appreciation of the danger of any mention of 8-inch-gun cruisers, which the Americans wish to construct as a secondary type of warship, the Japanese then suggested that a second class of cruisers be created with a maximum of 8,000 tons each. It is said that probably America could install guns of the 8-inch caliber on vessels of such displacement.

Then comes a clause of "safeguard," whereby any signatory power would have the right to denounce the arrangement after a new meeting of the representative powers concerned, if they deemed that the building activity of cosignatories menaced the security of the complaining power.

The A firmer tone of the market was due to the calling of loans aggregating about 35,000,000 for account of country banks, which may be the beginning of the seasonal flight of noney from this city to the interior. The firmness of money also was reflected in a stiffening of bank acceptance rates, 30-day bills being marked up to 3½, which placed them on a parity with 90-day bills. Time money was in somewhat larger supply at 4 per cent.

A hectic rush to buy Timken and Manhattan Electrical Supply also was outstanding. A rumor was current that an insider in Manhattan had tipped off the stock to his close friends as good for 175 and the shorts became further alarmed. The stock closed with a net gain of 5% in new high territory. Timken, after mounting 4 or 5 points in more or less orderly fashion, found a clear track ahead and shot up more than 10 points more in a few minutes, then promptly lost a few. The move in this stock has been accompanied by rumors of a merger with American Steel Foundries, but recently that rumor was buried. However, Timken has entered into extensive power contracts which contemplate a considerable expansion in its manufacturing activities.

Walter Johnson was cited by the service. Although illness prevented Ban Johnson, president of the American League, from making the presenta-tion personnally, the big pitcher re-ceived the first "distinguished service medal" ever bestowed by the league upon any ball player. The medal, in the shape of a Maltese cross, was studded with 20 diamonds, one for each year of Johnson's service, and bore picture of the pitcher in the center. Actual cost of the medal was $1,000.

The medal denoting 20 years of serv ice is insufficient to commemorate the deeds of Walter Johnson during that As Johnson stood out there in the pitcher's box yesterday he was the only ball player still in active service with the exception of Ty Cobb, who participated in that memorable game inst the Detroit Tigers, August 2,

August 2, 1907, and August 2, 1927, differed widely, the 500 "first tlmers" at the game yesterday will tell you. They will tell you how on that August 2, 20 years ago, Walter Johnson, the big country boy from Weiser, Idaho, pitched his first big league ball game in the ramshackle park on the same site and introduced the blinding speed ball that was to make him the sensaball that was to make him the sens tion of the game. They will tell you how the Detroit Tigers, baffled by his speed, were forced to resort to a bunting game and by that method scored runs, enough to defeat Johnson Washington, 3-2.

Out there in the pitcher's box yesterday it was a vastly different and very much the same Johnson who faced the Tigers on that day 20 years ago. Johnson yesterday was the same good-natured, easy-going country boy, his head unturned by his success and playing the game to win, but the blinding speed was gone.

The terror of batters for more than a decade was no more. The fast ball that had opposing batsmen cringing at its very velocity had melted with the

Walter Johnson yesterday was "mix Water Johnson yesterday was "mixing them up." Ten years ago it would have been a strange sight to see Walter Johnson pitching a curve and alternating it with a slow ball but the man who has served longer with the same club than any pitcher in baseball had tempered his failing speed with an effective change of pace. He was throwing curve balls but he isn't a curve ball pitcher and he was beaten.

But on the day that the fans wanted to please Walter Johnson, Johnson tried to please the crowd. So he threw his speed balls with all the speed he could muster for four Innings and then he weakened. Walter Johnson weakened in the fifth inning because he wanted to the crowd with his speed Then the Detroit Tigers, no baffled by the veteran, won ame when he did weaken.

THERE seems, to be considerable doubt among the scorers as to whether or not Walter Johnson should be charged with yesterday's defeat at the hands of the Tigers. The official scorer, while rulling that Garland Braxton is the losing pitcher, admits that he may be wrong and has decided to submit the case to the American League for final decision.

According to the scoring rules

League for final decision.

According to the scoring rules laid-down by Irwin M. Howe. Johnson should be charged with the defeat. In the ninth inning of the game, with Washington leading, 5 to 4, Helimann singled and was forced at second by Neun. With the count two balls and no strikes on Wingo, Braxton relieved Johnson, and McManus then took Wingo's place at the plate and watted for two more balls, walking.

Woodall then tripled over McNeely's head, scoring both Neun and McManus. A pitcher

The whole question thus is confined to that of who was responsible for putting McManus on the sacks, and the ruling on the subject is clear. Here it is: "The relieving pitcher, coming into the game 'cold'—and possibly in the midst of a batting rally—can not be held responsible for runners he may find on the bases, nor should he be charged up with the first batsman he faces reaching first if such batsman had any advantage because of the wild pitching of the first pitcher."

As, when McManus relieved Wingo at the plate, two balls had been called while Johnson was pitching, the "old master" should be charged with the base on balls and the run into which it was later turned.

ALTER JOHNSON never expects to take his regular turn in the pitcher's box again.

After twenty years of campaigning, the Big Train has decided that he no longer can be counted upon to pixen turn in and turn out, but is satisfied that he still has a number of winning games left in his right arm, which had hurled more baseballs past batters than any other the game has ever known.

"I can't go out there and throw that ball over like I used to." Johnson told an Associated Press correspondent. "But with proper care and rest I think I can go in and win a game now and Leaning forward across the front rail of a deserted grand stand at Griffith Stadium, walter fixed his gaze on the broad field where he had scored so many of his triumphs.

"You know," he said after a pause, "the injury I received this year hurt me a whole lot. It would not have made so much difference with a young fellow, but I am eating and it.

time soon.

"I'll probably be like the rest of them," he said with a smile. "Baseball is hard to get away from. I probably won't try to pitch much more, but the chances are that I'll be connected with a ball club as long as I am able to put on a uniform."

"Are you still interested in buying into a minor league club as you were a few years ago?"

"I did want to buy a minor league club and I may when the time comes for me to retire from the American League."

Johnson labored seventeen years for the Washington club before he got his big thrill. That game in the 1924 world series, when, after losing two games to the New York Glants, he was called upon in a relief role and pitched his team to a world's championship.

His greatest disappointment came a year later on a rainsoaked field in Pittsburgh when the Pirates hammered out a victory against him in the seventh game to become the baseball champions of the year.

"Had Marberry's arm been good that final game would have been different," Walter said. "I went into the game without enough rest—in the last few years pitching takes more out of me than it did. I realized I had a tough job ahead and I wanted to make good so

Barney Loses Jovial Mood During "Auld Lang Syne."

Says After Contest That Ceremonies Were an 'Ordeal.'

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE 20,000 fans who turned out yesterday to pay homage to Walter Johnson as he started his twenty-first year as a major league pitcher, entered the gates of the Griffith Stadium imbued with the holiday spirit which prompted the event and apparently took nothing seriously.

There were moments, of course, when one could have heard a pin drop, but generally, the gathering was a noisy one with the fans paying their tribut to the Old Master in a typical baseball fashion.

Johnson, too, found this spirit infectious and seemed to get quite a kick out of the affair as it started, but a "sob story" writer would have found plenty of material in the actions of the haro of the occasion when the committee and fans began ladening him office.

Comedians Altrock and Schacht helped Johnson hide his true feeling behind a big smile with their anticas the first presentations were made, but when the wounded soldiers from Watter Reed Hospital hobbled up on crutches with their gift of a bronze tray made by them and Harry Hunt, oid the District Building, was pushed up in a wheelchair to give him a bid dog puppy, Johnson's feelings got the better of him and he was mighty close to tears.

Following the receipt of the many gifts and in response to a general demand from the stands for a speech, Johnson slowly advanced to the microphone and tried to say a few words. After hesitating a moment or so, he thanked Washington fans for "their kindness of all these years," told them how "wonderful" they were to arrange this anniversary event, and thanked them again.

Johnson's remarks came right from his heart and the ceremonies so affected him that, after the game, he was not sure just what he had said or, in fact, if he had said anything at all.

After the Nats had taken the field and the game was about to start, the players stood with hats off and heads bowed as the Columbia Quartet, led the gathering in singing "Auld Lang Syne." This old Scotch song seemed to touch the Old Master's heartstrings and, his mates sensing this, rushed about him and tried to "josh" him back into his normal mood. He appeared quite overcome momentarily, but a fortunately could not ride him. It was a shame to see him beaten. He came from last place and was beaten a "sizzer" on the post.

Having shown his form he will be forced to try in the second spasm out at Lincoln Fields. Gather in the kale, boys, as you will soon need to fill the coal bin.

ENERGY and OH SUSANNA are going to hook up again in a sprint affair and should be a humdinger of a finish. Last time I selected OH SUSANNA but now I am switching to ENERGY. Guess you don't think that I know something. Well, wait and see. me word not to go too strong on HIRAM, stating at that BILLY, f om the Audley Farm stable, is the fastest maiden in the country. Terry did not see thim some other day.

Sam Hildreth will arrive at Saratoga in time to saddle MOWLE in the fifth race. He also will be writing out tickets as the field is dispatched by starter Cassidy. This is one of the safest propositions of the aft. PETER FEZ is hooked up with his own kind, however, and will be at fair odds. This is one will worth stringing with.

Blue Bonnets opens up with an excellent card. The XXX special at this course is TATTLING. This one is generally understood to be the property of Commander Ross despite his recent sade. "TAT" is ready to step high, wide and handsome.

Mose Goldblatt showed the boys a few tricks with ROYAL PENNANT the other day and is going to repeat down at Raceland with the same juvenile. More anon.

Three Tied for Honors First Round With 73s.

Burrows and Cole Also Have Chance to Qualify.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—
Old man par resisted the vigorous attacks of 123 public golfers today, but three players had him all but defeated, tying one stroke above perfect figures at 73 for first place at the end of today's 18-hole qualifying round of the national public links championahip over the 6,800-yard links of the Ridgewood Club.

Carmen Bill, of Cleveland, the first man around the course, had par eating out of his hand up to the last two holes, and then the bogey of golfers bit him so severely that he threw away three attokes and finished with 39-4-73, as against par 37-35-72.

This store, a record for the course from the back tees, was equaled during the day by Carl Kaufman, of Pittaburgh, who scored 35-38-73, and Clarke Morse, of 5t. Louis, 17 years old, who went one above par on the out nine, but kept even on the homeward journey. No other player got closer than two strokes to this trio, but there were more than 32 scores of 81 or better, indicating that the 32 who will qualify for match play after tomorrow's round or qualification will need to shoot 182 or better for 36 holes to remain in the contest for the title, now held by Lester Bolstad, of Minneapolis. ntest for the title, now held by Lester lstad, of Minneapolis.

This means that : . of the four Washington golfers have only to repeat their today's performance to be among the qualifiers, for J. R. Miller turned in a 77, while B. H. Burrow's card read 79, Robert Burton, who was credited with an 82, also has a good chance to enter the match play rounds. Charles Cole, the other Capital City en-trant, scored an 88 and will have to battle right around par tomorrow to make up the ground he lost to-

ZACHARY TODAY

Tiger Bench.

Zachary reported here with a sore salary wing and the fact that he completed this ten-inning test with no bad after-effects indicates that he has recovered the form which made him a successful pitcher when he was with the Nats previously. This and the fact that he craves to prove to his former mates that they, made a mistake if "wishing" him off the team by benting them a second time should make him bear down from start to finish.

President Clark Griffith vesterday re-President Clark Griffith yesterday received a telegram from Pitcher Clayton Van Alstyne, sixting that he, his wife and their brand-new baby left Birmingham yesterday morning and are motoring here by easy jumps. They probably will arrive Friday or Saturday.
This plan suited the Washington Club head, who figured on giving the finger at least a week's rest before having him put on a uniform. The Barona. in inger at least a week's rest before having him put on a uniform. The Barons, in the heat of a pennant race, have used the pitcher so frequently and so hard that he is just about "all in" and little will be expected of him here for a week or ten days after he arrives.

In the seventh inning Outfielder Heinie Manush directed some uncalled-for remarks from the bench at Umpire Red Ormaby and was banished from the game.

TILDEN TAKES FIRST TWO MATCHES

Manuel Alonso Bows to Fritz Mercur in Feature.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 2 (A.P.).—

William T. Tilden opened play in the men's singles for the Seabright Bowl here today by losing the first set. 5—7, to James Quick, of Dalalas, Tex., only to take the next two and the match in a whirlwind finish. The score was 5—7, 7—5, 5—0.

Young Quick fought valiantly throughout, while Tilden in the first two sets drove into the net repeatedly. In the last set he was transformed and Quick scored only an occasional point.

The match was played on a court wet from a passing shower Again Tilden did the dramatic, doding his shoes to play in heavy white woolen socks on the soggy slippery green.

For his second-match Tilden don-ned spikes, as the court was drier. Here, too, he chose to save his best tennis until near the end. He downed Arnold Jones, of Provi-dence, R. I., 7-5, 6-4, to enter the third round where tomorrow he meets Jerry Lang, of New York,

As Tilden left the court some observers noted a slight limp which led to a question about the condition of his left knee, which has given him trouble. Tilden declined to answer for publication, although previously he has been quick to declare the knee in good shape. He is scheduled to start play tomorrow in men's doubles with Richard N. Williams and in mixed doubles with Mrs. Molla-Mallory, Thursday, besides the singles.

A feature of today's play was elimination of the runner-up to Tilden in the national ranking, Manuel Alonzo, by Pritz Mercur, former Lehigh player, who won in straight sets, 6—3, 8—6. Mercur's chop stroke had the former Spanish Davis cup player guessing throughout.

By his victory Mercur won the right to meet George Lott, Chicago, who to-day eliminated Watson Washburn, for-mer Davis Cup defender. A popular favorite to fall in the second round was John Doeg, 18-year-old Californian, who went down fighting before Lewis N. White, Austin, Tex., No. 8 in the national ranking.

"Let Walter sing" was shouted om the grand stand when the olumbia Quartet was announced of this seemed to hit Johnson's unny-bone," while he actually ushed and became visibly em-urrassed when presented with a stills of cologne which, one of the owd informed him, was "to keep will sweet."

ille Johnson appreciated, almost to the affection and generosity shown by Capital cityans, he admitted the game that the affair had ad an ordeal. Of a modest and might be termed a "shrinking" disposition, Johnson's nerves pretty well "shot" from sheer tude. Almost overcome by his ags, the Old Master surely proved elf a man of steel.

In the first four innings of the game, is struck out three and did not allow that. Then the strain began to tell und he granted six safeties and three uns in the next frame. He managed on pull himself together again and, eith victory in sight, Manager Harris seused him and called on his two redefingers, Garland Braxton and Fredfriberry, but they were unable to save he day and Johnson was charged with he defeat.

In the Nats' dressing room after the game, Johnsons' thoughts were not of the loss charged to his rec-ord but of the fans, who had proven their affection in such an adequate way. "Tell them I tried to win for them," he said.

In line with the holiday spirit, the umpires appeared on the field in their natty blue and gray combination, in-flead of the usual drab uniform. Groundkeeper Emil Haesman, getting the idea from them, also was bedecked in his best, "Sunday go-to-meeting eights."

Al Schacht, a business man himself, rates Scout Joe Engel as one also. "He and Johnson are partners in the dog business." said Al. "He gives 'Barney' four dogs as an anniversary present and tiren, being a partner, naturally is entitled to claim one half of them. The whole thing looks like a frame-up to ms."

President Clark Oriffith was greatly disappointed at having to rule that the group of "I saw Johnson pitch the first game" fans was too bulky to be permitted to greet the big pitcher at the home plate as per the original "Anni-versary Day" program. Then, again, time also was an element, the game being fourteen minutes late in starting as it was.

mittee in charge ordered 500 The committee in charge ordered 500 of these identification badges, thinking there would be 100 or more left over, but all were used up an hour and a half before game time. In this group of "first timers" was Charles E. McCory, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, at whose instance Ben Minor, president of the Washifigton Club in 1907, finally sent Scout Blankenship to Weiser, Idaho, to sign Johnson.

Mesers. Altrock and Schacht outdid hemselves yesterday and their numberous stunts did much to make life pleasant for the early comers. Their revised boxing stunt, which ends with a slow movie of the seventh round of the recent Dempsey-Sharkey fight, made quite a hit, but their best contribution of the day came just before the game started. Then they appeared limping on the field, old and palsied and depending upon canes, with beards and depending upon canes, with beards down to their shoulders, announcing themselves as the coaches in that now famous game of August 2, 1907.

on the diamond who has seen the strain of 20 years of service in baseball. He cas Billy Evans, who umpired the name on August 2, 1907, and who has game on August 2, 1907, and who has been umpiring ever since. And he umpired the first inning of the game yesterday although he has been confined to crutches with a badly twisted knee. Evans insisted on appearing in the game and discarded his crutches to call the strikes on Johnson for at least an inning. Maybe Bill Evans pondered over the uselessness of being an umpire. Johnson, the man who had received the plaudits of fandom for 20 years, again was bearing his praises aung as a deserving idol. Billy Evans, the umpire, who for 20 years had heard the cat-calls and hisses follow his decisions was not so much of a hero but it was sweet bitterness to Evans for an umpire is not always tolerated and Evans was both tolerated and cheered. Fandom's regard for Walter Johnson was best told by Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, in the presentation speech broadcast before the game.

"Twenty years ago today you made your debut with the Washington Baseball Club and your first appearance in the American Lague. During that time, by your loyal, efficient and clean services you have nonored the game; you have endeared yourself to the baseball adherents of Washington and have greatly promoted the interest of baseball throughout the country.

Joe" Jackson were the batters who gave Johnson the greatest trouble over the first decade of his big league career.

"During my first few years," he said, "Cobb was a great hitter and ball player, but he didn't bother me as much as Baker and Jackson. Later on, after I lost a little of the hop on my fast one, Cobb started to make up lost ground. Now Ruth and fellows like him hit me hard, as they are fast, ball hitters. Ruth likes my style of pitching."

Walter accounts Hal Chase one of the smartest batters he ever faced, although he never regarded Chase as a great hitter.

"You know, he was good at placing them on the hit and run," he said. "But of the smart ball players, Eddie Collins and Ty Cobb were among the best. They always were wide awake and were in there always seizing the smallest advantage. That is why they are the great ball players that they are."

Johnson is convinced that baseball

Johnson is convinced that baseball today is not nearly as smartly played as it was some years ago and he at-tributes that to the lively ball.

"There are a lot of great ball players still in the game," Walter said, "but with the lively ball it is not necessary to apply the smartness used in years past. Now adays teams seem to be satisfied to lay back and wait for the big rally, which all figure will come time during a game."

The Big Train then gave his own opinion, that the lively ball had not done baseball much good. "The lively ball takes real baseball out of baseball." he declared.

"The people wanted more hitting and the lively ball was the result. Then, too, pitchers were handicapped more and more with freak deliveries, discoloration of the ball and the like banned. I think they have gone too far in the way of favoring the batters as against the pitchers, and there is no doubt in my mind but that finally a happy medium will be found." "How does it feel to be knocked out of the box?" Johnson was asked.

"A pitcher never likes to be knocked out of the box," was the instant reply. "But the way I feel is that somebody has to lose, and, right there. I might say that the first thing a successful ball player has to do is to be prepared to take his bad days and come back.

"If a player lets his bad days get the best of him, he will not have many good days. To my mind this is an ex-planation of why so many men who show great promise in the bid leagues for a while fade out of the picture."

Johnson does not believe in umpire baiting, and is one of the few players who never has been banished from the who never has been banished from the game by an umpire.

"A ball player must realize that the umpires are all honest and are doing the best they can," he said. "When a player is going bad he sometimes lays his own troubles to the umpire. But no player or team should blame defeat on an umpire. I personally would rather take the blame myself."

your personal life is held as an example for the youth of the country. You have helped to make baseball the great American game, rivaling in interest every other sport and to extend its fame throughout the world.

"Citizens of Washington, as well as residents of the neighboring counties of Maryland and Virginia, and admirers in other parts of the country."

Heilmann singled to center to start off the ninth inning and Neun bunted to Johnson who forced Heilmann with a throw to Reeves at second base. Neun to Johnson who forced Helimann with a throw to Reeves at second base. Neun stole second. Wingo pinch hit for Deviveiros and them Manager Harris relieved Johnson and called in Garland Braxton as his pitcher. McManus relieved Wingo at bat and walked. Woodall then sent a long fly to McNeely who dropped the ball. It was scored as a triple and Neun and McManus came home. Woodall scored what proved to be the winning run on Warner's single off Marberry, who had relieved Braxton. Washington railled vainly in the ninth to score a useless run when Reeves trippled and scored on Tate's sacrifice fly.

"Cloose" Goslin and Harry Heilmann were the batting heroes of the day with three safeties each. But the Detroit pitchers were given better support than were Johnson and Braxton. Bluege performed raggedly at third base and McNeely should have caught Woodall's fly that went for a three-base hit and virtually won the game.

what went for a three-base hit and virtually won the game.

Walter Johnson started out as if to pitch a no-hit game and he did—for four innings. The Tigers went out in order until the fifth and Washington had scored a run in the second on Goslin's triple and Bluege's single.

In the fifth when Johnson weak-ened, the Tigers cracked out six hits and batted around to score four runs. Fothergill was the first to solve Johnson and he smacked a two-base hit to center field. Then Helimann singled, Neun singled, Deviveiros sacrificed, Woodall sin-ried, Warner and Gebringer dou-

Washington tied the score in the seventh when Coslin singled, Ruel walked. Bluege doubled, Johnson walked and Rice bunted safely. This stack netted three runs and in the eighth Washington went shead on a run scored from Speaker's single. Goslin's single and Ruel's sacrifice fly.

But Johnson, his speed ball gone, and his cunning inaufficient, was unable to hold the Tigers at bay in the ninth and he didn't win.

Easy Money Again Helps Prices Upward; Liberty Fourth 41/4s Active.

FOREIGN GROUP IS FIRM

New York, Aug. 2 (Associated Press). Sharply increased buying of high grade investment issues today resulted in a number of new peak prices in the bond market, and gave the list as a whole an undertone of strength. Continued easy money rates, the recent decline in bank acceptance rates and the reduction last week of the Kansas City Federal. Reserve Bank's rediscount rate have revived hope in speculative quarters that downward revisions in other Federal Reserve centers are imminent. The reviving interest in listed investment securities indicated that satisfactory relief has been obtained from the topheavy condition of the market due to the oversupply of new material. The belief was expressed that the July reinvestment demand had helped materially in curing the spell of indigestion in the bond trade. President Coolidge's announcement that he "does not choose" to seek reslection next year came too late to have any effect on the market.

Among the especially active issues which attained new high prices in today's session were Chesapeake Corporation 5s, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, St. Faul 4s and debenture 4s, Allegheny & Western 4s and Hoe & Co. 6½s. Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s featured the convertible group by jumping nearly 5 points to a new peak, the rise being concurrent with strength of the stock.

New York, Aug. 2 (Associated Press). Sharply increased buying of high grade investment issues today resulted in a number of new peak prices in the bond market, and gave the list as a whole an undertone of strength. Continued easy money rates, the recent decline in bank acceptance rates and the reduction last week of the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate bank acceptance rates and the reduction last week of the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate have revived hope in speculative quarters that downward revisions in other Federal Reserve centers are imminent. The reviving interest in listed investment securities indicated that satisfactory relief has been obtained from the topheavy condition of the market due to the oversupply of new material. The belief was expressed that the July reinvestment demand had helped materially in curing the spell of indigestion in the bond trade. President Coolidge's announcement that he "does not choose" to seek relection next year came too late to have any effect on the market.

Among the especially active issues which attained new high prices in today's session were Chesapeake Corporation 5s, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, St. Paul 4s and debenture 4s, Allegheny & Western 4s and Hoe & Co. 6½s. Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s featured the convertible group by jumping nearly 5 points to a new peak, the rise being concurrent with strength of the stock.

The foreign division was active and firm. French German and Italian and in the stock.

More than a quarter of a million in Liberty Fourth 41/4s changed hands around yesterday's closing price, but Treasury bonds were easy, the 4s and 33/4s each losing nearly a quarter of a point.

Public offering is expected some time this week of $12,000,000 Iowa & Nebraska Light & Power Co. 5s, while an issue of $35,000,000 refunding 5s for the Southern California Edison Co. probably will reach the market in a month or so.

The two nsw issues of City of Philadelphia 4s: nd 4½s, totaling $15,000,000, will be offered tomorrow at 9934 and interest and 10214 and interest, respectively. respectively

Soper, cashier of tha Lincoln National Bank and this year's chairman of the educational committee, yesterday. "The standard courses have been enlarged from time to time to meet more adequately the requirements of bank employes, and this year they will be sufficiently comprehensive to interest both junior and senior bankers."

Business Failures Decline.

Business Failures Decline.

Following the seasonal tendency, the number of commercial failures in the United States declined during July, a total of 1,756 being reported to R. G. Dun & Co. This marks the fourth consecutive monthly reduction, and the decreases from the 2,465 defaults of last January, the high point for this year, approximates 29 per cent.

Comparing with the 1,633 insolvencies of June, the present number is smaller by about 41-3 per cent. but it is 91-3 per cent above the 1,605 failures of July, 1926. In considering the increase over the total for that period, some allowance must be made for the larger number of firms and individuals now engaged in business, which naturally enhances the possibilities of financial embarrassment.

"In contrast, with the decline in number of commercial defaults last month from the total for the larger number of commercial defaults last month from the total for the larger number of commercial defaults last

"In contrast with the decline in month from the total for June, the liabilities show a considerable rise owing to some large insofvencies," says the Dun report. "The July indebtedness of $43,149,974 is about 25 per cent above the amount for the immediately preceding month, the increase being principally in the classification embracing agents, brokers, real estate &c." The present indebtedness is the largest since last April, when about $53,000,000 was reported. Comparing with the $29,680,009 of July, 1926, ar increase of approximately 45 per cent is shown.

Fadden act, as put into effect by recent regulations of the Comptroller of the RATIONS OF C. M. T. C. SENATOR ASKS QUIZ currency, is contained in a legal opinion which has been received by some Washington banks from Kiplinger, Babson & Jacobs, bank representatives for whom it was prepared by counsel. The opinion does not attempt spe cifically to list those securities which cifically to list those securities which are legal for national bank investment, but explains in detail the basic principles established by the Comptroller of the Currency. The regulations themselves are so brief that many banks and investment houses have felt it necessary to get opinions and interpretations as to their meaning.

Bankers at Ball Game.

Practically every local bank and investment house was represented at Griffith Stadium yesterday when Walter Johnson toed the mark against the same club which faced him in his bigleague debut on August 2, 1907, and among the supposedly serious-minded financiers were several who also were present when this same pitching ace pitched his first ball 20 years ago.

TRAFFIC DIRECTOR SIMPLIFIES CHIEF AUTO REGULATIONS

Laws Aiding Safety Are to Be Set Aside in the New Book.

WILL ENABLE DRIVERS TO LEARN CODE EASILY

Need of "Wading" Through 30 Pages of Old Pamphlet Held Detrimental.

What are the essential regulations, which, if observed by a driver at all times, will guarantee him that his driving will be safe for himself and others?

There are a great many regulations, and some naturally are more important than others. It is the purpose of this article to put forward those regulations which motorists should know and observe above all others. The following regulations have been selected because, if motorists will master them and observe them at all times, danger will be outlawed from the streets.

The motorist approaching an intersection shall slow down, bring the vehicle he is driving under complete control, and give the right of way to the motorist approaching on the cross street from the right. If he intends to make a right or left-hand turn he shall give the right of way to through traffic, and shall indicate that he intends to make the turn by giving the hand signal.

The driver of any vehicle approach.

The driver of any vehicle, approaching a street car going in the same direction, which has stopped to take on or discharge passengers, shall stop 8 feet behind the street car and shall remain standing until all passengers have boarded the car, or reached the sidewalk. Where a platform or safety zone has been established, the driver may, with due caution and regard for passengers, drive by, taking care to avoid passing through any safety zone.

Avoid Safety Zones.

Avoid Safety Zones.

No driver shall drive any vehicle through any part of any safety zone, whether—it is occupied or not.

No vehicle shall pass another going in the same direction at a street intersection, except on boulevard highways, and shall never attempt to pass another on a highway where view of the road is obscured by a curve or a hill.

A vehicle turning into a street to the right shall keep as near to the right-hand curb as possible, and a vehicle turning to the left shall pass around the central point of the street intersection. It is a violation of the law to cut corners, and it is not necessary to cut the crosswalks on the opposite side, but merely to pass around the central point of the street intersection.

No vehicle shall be furned around.

No vehicle shall be turned around etween intersecting streets on any ighway unless the turn can be made between intersecting screens of made highway unless the turn can be made without backing.

All vehicles, upon the approach of fire apparatus, shall clear intersections, pull to the right-hand curb, or as near the curb as possible, and stop and remain until all apparatus has cleared the block.

everybody to see it.

INVESTIGATION ASKED

No vehicle shall be driven in any alley faster than 7-miles an hour. No vehicle shall energe from an alley, gates, stable area, or any place of busiless faster than 3 miles an hour, and all vehicles shall come to a stop before crossing the sidewalk.

No vehicle shall cross an intersection controlled by traffic lights until the green light has shown, and all vehicles shall come to a stop on the red light. The right turn, at intersections controlled by lights, shall be made while the green light is showing on the street from which the turn is made and while the red light is showing on the street into which the turn is made and while the red light, and pull ahead to the opposite side of the street intersection, and there stop and remain standing until the green light shows on the cross street, when he may proceed ahead of the vehicles waiting for the green light on the cross street. When the lights flash amber and red, it means fire apparatus is approaching.

The motorist always shall stop at "stop" signs placed on streets for many for the green light on the cross street. When the lights flash amber and red, it means fire apparatus is approaching.

Must Stop at Signs.

The motorist always shall stop at "stop" signs placed on streets controlled by traffic lights.

The motorist always shall stop at "stop" signs placed on streets controlled by traffic lights.

The motorist always shall stop at "stop" signs placed on streets controlled by traffic lights.

shall keep over toward the curb, especially on streets controlled by traffic lights.

If the motorist will master these regulations and practice them as he would his daily dozen, he may save his own life, the life of some loved one or friend or the life of a child or a stranger in the street. In other words, he will serve himself and others, which is a great deal more than keeping one's self fit.

If he will master these, will use proper judgment and will watch the signs erected along the streets, he not only will avoid accidents, but is likely to have very little trouble.

There is another important thing he should do, however, and that is to watch for children in the street and watch for old people. There are certain pedestrians who are in a degree unable to take care of themselves, and it is only right that the driver, being stronger, should take the responsibility to watch out for them. Toddling feet and slow old age should receive a kindy care from high-powered wheels.

Of course, there are other regulations, but the driver should first learn these set forth here, and then learn the rest, keeping these main ones uppermost in mind always.

Hit-and-Run Law.

Safety Hint

The traffic regulations state that drivers shall "keep over as near as practicable to the right-hand curb" for overtaking traffic to pass be-tween the vehicle he is driving and the center of the street.

This regulation is one of the most important in the city ordinance, and its observance not only is necessary for the orderly movement of hog," against whom so much complaint has been made. Nevertheless where cars are parked along the right-hand curb the driver should keep an eye on these cars, and where the parked cars completely obscures his view, he should bring his machine under control. Pedes-trians, particularly children, frequently step out from behind parked cars.

Above all things, the driver should keep toward the curve when going around circles, since several of the circles have eight routes of travel leading from them, and only right turns are made at circles. Keep over toward the right at all circles and give the hand signal when turning your permit besides suffering a severe penalty in Traffic Court.

There is one thing pedestrians should learn to do above all others, and that is, not to walk from behind parked cars. Every time a pedestrian does that he fiirts with absolute suicide. He is entirely to blame, because common sense would teach any creature with an ounce of wit better. There is another important thing. Parents should teach children the rules of caution, and keep them out of the street.

The one thing that totally incapacitates motor vehicle drivers, although

The one thing that totally incapacitates motor vehicle drivers, although some of them do not seem to be aware of it, is intoxicating drink.

No man who "feels" intoxicating drink is fit to take charge of an automobile wheel. The drunken driver is as dangerous in the street as a lunatic. Every driver should make a resolution against driving under the influence of liquor in even the smallest degree. Any plea that is made against this dangerous practice is a plea on behalf of the driver. If he will not take advice before, he is certain to live to regret it after. A jall sentence and loss of permit is the usual reward for this transgression.

Book Being Simplified.

The main regulations may be regarded as on the order of the Ten Commandments. There is, however, one rule that every driver should make his motto, and that is the following:

rule that every driver should make his motto, and that is the following:

"Take heed of your neighbor in the street as you would have him take heed of you."

You might say of this rule that "this is the traffic law," and you might add that the prophets of safety are encompassed within it also. Nothing could state the idea of society better, so far as traffic is concerned.

William H. Harland, director of traffic, is simplifying the book of traffic regulations to enable drivers to learn the general regulations without wading through the more than 30 pages of printed matter that the book contains. One deterrent to drivers learning the regulations, it is said, is the fact that they must wade through such a multitude of regulations, general and specific.

The law requires the printing of all pull to the right-hand curb, or as near the curb as possible, and stop and remain until all apparatus has cleared the block.

No vehicle shall be driven at a rate faster than is reasonable for conditions, and in no case shall exceed 22 miles an hour, unless signs specifically state that a faster rate is permitted.

Good Brakes Essential.

The motorist should see that his brakes are in order at all times. He must be able to stop a vehicle, going at a rate of 20 miles an hour on a dry, level road, within a distance of 50 feet with the hand brake.

The driver of any vehicle, intending to draw out from the curb or a parking space, shall indicate such intention with a sound of the horn and the hand signal, and shall draw out cautiously and in such a way as not to obstruct traffic.

Before turning to the right or left to leave a lane of traffic, before coming to a stop in the traffic lane, and before pulling out of line, the driver shall give a warning to other drivers by extending the arm beyond and straight outside the vehicle, and holding the outside the vehicle, and holding the outside the vehicle, and holding the current of the propagations and regulations whether they pretain to a particular street or to the entire city. The book of regulations were selected and set forth in an article for the beneary and this was one of the reasons that the "essential" regulations were selected and set forth in an article for the beneary them. ### GRANT OBJECTS TO PLAN

The District Commissioners yesterday enied the request of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. for permission to Rapid Transit Co. for permission to abandon its bus terminal loop around Colorado avenue, Kennedy and Sixteenth streets and to establish a loop in Rock Creek Park by building a roadway to connect Kennedy place with Morrow drive.

Lleut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, superintendent of public buildings and public parks, filed an objection to the plan as an invasion of the public parks by a private interest. In a written recommendation to the Commissioners, he stated that the law forbade such use of park land but offered, if the Commissioners deemed the situation to partake of the nature of an emergency, to turn the land over the District government to permit the plan to be worked out.

Waving a loaded revolver above his head, police report, William G. Peacock, colored, 45 years old, 606 T street northwest, appeared on a vacant lot in the rear of his home last evening and threatened the lives of four colored boys. A few moments later Patrolman R. V. Wolfe, of the Eight Precinct, sent him to a hospital.

The four boys soon notified Wolfe of the threat. The patrolman hastened to the lot and grappled with Peacock for the weapon for more than ten minutes. Finally Wolfe drew his own revolver and struck Peacock over the head. After treatment at Freedman's Hospital for a scalp laceration, Peacock was placed under police guard at Gallinger Hospital charged with threats. The revolver he flourished, police say, contained eight bullets.

ment to permit the plan to be worked out.

As an alternative, Col. Grant suggested that the bus line be extended along Sixteenth street northwest to Underwood street, where existing park drives could be utilized to turn the vehicles, and the public golf grounds there could be served by them.

The Commissioners ordered the papers in the case returned to the Public Utilities Commission with a notation that the permit could not be issued. It is not known whether the Washington Rapid Transit Co. will undertake to adopt Col. Grant's suggestion and apply for an extension to Underwood street.

Accused of committing two daylight holdups, Robert E. Pryor, colored, 29 years old, 472 School street southwest, was arrested yesterday while riding in the Southwest section in a taxicab by Detectives Dennis J. Cullinane and J. T. Jackson of headquarters.

The holdups occurred Sunday. The robber hired a taxicab driven by Charles Hensen, 2640 Stanton road southeast, and was driven to an alley in Southwest, where he held the driver at pistol point, searched him but obtained nothing. A short time later the robber hired Edward Delehanty, 1012 I street southeast, also a cab driver, and repeated the performance with the same result. Both Henson and Delehanty, police say, identified Pryor as the would-be robber.

Relocation of Pool For Swimmnig Asked

Sale of the Keleher Apartment building, 1909 Nineteenth street northwest, from John B. Keleher to David A. Baer and Robert O. Scholz was announced yesterday by Randall H. Hagner & Co., who handled the transaction. Although the consideration involved was not stated, it was understood to be in the neighborhood of $300,000.

Built about seven years ago, the building overlooks the Dean Estate on the west, and is eight stories high and contains 41 apartments of two to five rooms and bath. The structure has a wide frontage on both Nineteenth street and Florida avenue. Matthew Lepley was architect for the building. The Board of Education yesterday requested the office of public buildings and public parks to locate a projected swimming pool in a position running north and south across the grounds of McKinley Manual Training High School instead of east and west, as contemplated by the latter office, on the grounds that the former location will give more ground space.

The request will be taken under consideration before contract letting. Hearing Dates Set
